International Affairs Department Interview Summary

Presidency University | Department Overview, Student Inquiries & AI Assistant Guidelines

Interviewee: Faculty / Official, International Affairs

Context: Department Needs Assessment & AI Assistant Study

Location: Taiwan Education Center Office

1. Department Offerings & Academic Pathways

> The Department of International Affairs facilitates global academic exposure for students across various stages of their degree, including reciprocal exchange agreements, fast-track postgraduate articulations, short-term experiential schools, and overseas corporate or research internships.

Program Type	Duration / Format	Key Structure & Eligibility
Student Exchange	1 Semester or 1 Year	Full credit-transfer agreements across institutional partners.
Master's Progression	Integrated pathways (3+1, 4+1, 4+2)	Undergraduate studies transitioned directly into partner Master's degrees abroad.
Seasonal Schools	Short-term (Summer / Winter)	Open irrespective of current academic year or department seniority.
Global Internships	Pre-final or Final year	Applied industry or research placements in host nations.

2. Question & Answer Breakdown (Part I)

Q1: What are the most frequently asked questions from students?

Students primarily inquire about international internships, exchange terms, and Master's pathways. The two most recurrent follow-up concerns are: "Will I be able to secure employment in the destination country?" and "What level of scholarship or financial assistance is available?"

Q2: What information do new students often struggle to find?

The department has not experienced issues where new students struggle to find information, as core documentation and advisories are regularly made accessible to entrants.

3. Question & Answer Breakdown (Part II)

Q3: What public resources and documentation are currently available?

Complete transparency is maintained via the Presidency University International webpage. It catalogs current partner universities, exchange options, alumni who have traveled abroad, and visiting international delegates, allowing prospective and enrolled students to conduct comprehensive research.

Q4: What are the department's working hours and communication channels?

Official in-office working hours are 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM. Unofficially, communication is active round the clock as students frequently message faculty and coordinators on instant messaging channels late into the night.

Q5: Does program information change frequently, and what are the notice periods?

The office plans far in advance, giving at least six months' notice for regular student exchange and study programs. Specialized or inbound internship calls may have tighter turnarounds, operating on approximately one month's notice.

4. Specifications for AI Assistant & Chatbot Design

Strict Privacy Safeguards

Mandatory Human Verification: When asked what an AI system must never answer autonomously, the official emphasized student personal data. Personal identifiers, student records, and application data must remain strictly confidential and never be compromised or exposed without human review.

First-Year Orientation Focus

Target Audience: Junior/freshmen students lack full awareness before formal orientations. An AI assistant's highest value is offering 24/7 self-service guidance regarding global eligibility, application windows, and procedural checklists before senior semester orientation takes place.

5. Departmental Recommendations for Students

Key Takeaways for Students & Bot Messaging:

- Prioritize official email broadcasts: While WhatsApp and informal word-of-mouth are common, verified notices and criteria are delivered through official university channels.
- Independent decision making: Students are urged to apply based on their individual academic goals and genuine interests, rather than simply following peer groups or friends abroad.
